DULL AT FREEPORT

The Races Did Not Compare with Janesville.

HORSEMEN ARE ALL INDIGNANT.

They Say They Were Unfairly Treated on the Illinois Track and Compare It Unfavorably with Janesville and Rockford - Yesterday's Races.

FREEPORT, June 27.—The trotting meeting that closed here last evening, was the least successful on the circuit. That this is true, is due to the poor management. The track is a good one, and the buildings are nearly as good as in Rockford, but, while horsemen speak with pleasure of their weeks at Janesville and Rockford, they vow that they will not again be caught in Freeport. The effort throughout the meeting seemed to be to get the best of owners on every possible technicality.

The closing day's races were well attended, but the races were dull and uneventful. Blazeberry won for all trot; Nellie V. second, and Freddie C. third. Ramona took the three-year-old trot from Pontoon, and General, who was distanced after taking two heats.

President Wilkes won the 2:24 pace in straight heats; Gypsy Goldust second, and Indianapolis Boy third.

PARNELL'S PLANS.

He Talks Upon His Future Political Hopes.

LONDON, June 27.—Parnell will disappoint those who predicted that he was either going to spend a long honeymoon on the continent or "in a cottage by the sea" at Brighton. He is going to Ireland to be in the thick of the fight in Carlow. That statement came from his own lips to a correspondent who had an interview with him at Brighton Friday. Mr. Parnell said that he found it impossible to procure a license for marriage in any country church, and in order to prevent delay he thought it best to marry in the registry office. The church ceremony would be performed in London as soon as he was able to put in a fortnight's residence there—probably at Brighton. He would do his best to prevent outsiders, and especially reporters, from being present. He would certainly go to Carlow, and was confident that he would win the only election since the divorce suit which he has had a chance of winning.

Mr. Parnell in the future intends to devote special attention to the Irish industrial question, in which he is more interested than any other question at present. Recently Mr. Parnell has given general support to Mr. Balfour's Irish land bill, believing that it is a well-conceived measure and that it will be well carried out. Mr. Parnell believes that the bill will greatly benefit Irish tenants and Irish landowners.

Mr. Parnell says that he intends, if possible, to visit the United States during the coming autumn, being of the opinion that the sentiment of the Irish and Irish-Americans on the other side of the Atlantic is in his favor. Consequently Mr. Parnell will try to attend the Irish national convention to be held in Baltimore, Md., during the fall.

When Mr. Parnell was asked what he thought would be the political effect of his marriage to Mrs. O'Shea he said that he had not given the question a thought and that he did not intend to think of what the effect of his marriage would be. He and his wife, Mr. Parnell explained, were perfectly happy, and he was now experiencing greater happiness than ever previously during the entire course of his life.

The newspapers take little notice of the marriage of Mr. Parnell and Mrs. O'Shea. The St. James's Gazette congratulates Parnell on a right proceeding of the situation, although he surrounded it with mystery and silence. The Gazette believes the marriage was largely calculated for political effect. The Globe says Mrs. O'Shea caused the rupture of a political faction. It is not impossible that Mrs. Parnell will heal the rupture. It commends the marriage on all accounts.

Mr. Parnell has sent greetings to a number of adherents in the house of commons expressing pleasure that the prolonged period of absence of Parnell and thanking them for their steadfast friendship during his troubles. He writes under an apparent conviction that his marriage will rapidly enable him to be reinstated in the Irish leader in parliament. A strong impression in the same direction prevails in the house of commons, in spite of the knowledge of the fact that the Catholic clergy will not accept the marriage as condoning his offense. English liberals are ready to hail him as a man doing his best to atone for his fault. Friends in the house of commons have sent to Brighton an invitation to Mr. Parnell to make an early appearance in the house of commons, when his entree is likely to be greeted with cheers. If the feeling in parliament reflects the sentiment of the country it will become a big political event. No immediate restoration of confidence between Parnell and the liberal leaders is possible, nor is it possible that the faction feud will end without long opposition from some of his now irreconcilable enemies, but the marriage has deprived his foes of one of their most potent weapons of attack. His moral position assured, political restoration, it is generally believed, becomes a matter of time.

FREEPORT, June 27.—The trotting meeting that closed here last evening, was the least successful on the circuit. That this is true, is due to the poor management. The effort throughout the meeting seemed to be to get the best of owners on every possible technicality.

COWS KILLED BY SHARON CLOVER.

Many Cattle Stabbed to Let the Gas Escape.

SHARON, June 27.—Oliver Hanson's cows were turned into a clover field Friday morning. About ten o'clock some one going by saw two dead cows in the field, and some of the others acting very queerly. Quite a crowd was soon on hand and prompt aid rendered to the other sick cows which were bloated up as big as a small mountain. Some had sticks in their mouth to hold them open and others were stuck to let the gas escape. The result of their morning in the clover field was three dead cows, all milkers, and several more sick.

INTO THE YELLOWSTONE.

Northern Pacific Passengers Narrowly Escape Drowning Near Rousebud, Mont.

ROUSEBUD, Mont., June 27.—A remarkable accident occurred to the west-bound Northern Pacific express a mile west of here at 10:30 o'clock Thursday night. Thirteen persons were injured, among them being Francis Murphy, the well-known temperance lecturer of Pittsburgh. A washout had occurred along an embankment, but the whole heavy train passed over it except the sleeping car Dickinson, which jumped the track and rolled into the Yellowstone river. All the lights were extinguished, and it was feared that several of the sleeping passengers had been drowned. Rapid work by the train men, however, got everybody out of the car and it was found that although thirteen persons were injured most of them had only scratches. Francis Murphy fell against the ironwork of his berth and broke his nose, and Mrs. Murphy received an abrasion on the right cheek.

LUMBER ABLAZE.

Ten Million Feet Destroyed by Fire in the Nelson Yards at Cloquet.

DULUTH, Minn., June 27.—Fire started about 4 o'clock Friday afternoon in one of the big lumber yards of the C. N. Nelson Lumber Company at Cloquet, and at last accounts was still burning, but was supposed to be under control. The mill escaped, and it was thought that the lumber in the other yards would also be saved. The lumber was all of the highest grade. It is estimated that at least 10,000,000 feet were burned, causing a loss of $150,000. The insurance is about $100,000. The fire is supposed to have started from a spark from the mill.

Said to Have Stolen Half a Million.

NEW YORK, June 27.—An evening paper says: "It is now stated on the authority of an officer of the New York Life Insurance Company that a new shortage of $125,000 has been discovered in the accounts of the Spanish-American department. This deficit is also due to the peculiar business methods of Agent Mezbercker, and added to the former shortage in his accounts of $75,000, brings the total amount of his defalcation up to nearly $500,000.

Fell from a Scaffold.

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 27.—A scaffold erected to the third story of the foundry being built for the Worthington Pump Company, of Brooklyn, near the Singer sewing machine works, at Elizabeth, fell with seventeen men, (Gabriel Williams, aged 39 years, and Michael Nolan, aged 35 years, of Elizabeth, were killed. Two others were fatally and two seriously injured.

Simmons Gets Six Years.

NEW YORK, June 27.—James A. Simmons, who was convicted of aiding Gen. Peter J. Claasen, president of the Sixth national bank, in the embezzlement of the funds of the institution, has been sentenced to six years imprisonment in the Erie county penitentiary. An appeal will be taken to the United States supreme court.

Two Women Killed by the Cars.

WANT WIDE TRACKS

Racine Aldermen at War with the Electric Road.

BOMB EXPLODED IN THE COUNCIL.

Contractors Will Be Compelled to Replace Their Old Track with a Standard Gauge Line or the Street Cars Will Be Stopped.

RACINE, June 27.—There is going to be a bitter legal fight between the city of Racine and the Belle City Street Railway Company. The bomb that will start the ball rolling is to be exploded at the next meeting of the council. It is intended to order the old tracks to be taken up and the wide gauge put in their place, and unless it is done steps will be taken to stop the street cars. The case will be carried to the supreme court if necessary. In many places about the city it is impossible to risk the vehicle without danger of being thrown out, on account of the tracks being narrow and so much higher than the street and the required amount of paving not being done on the outside of the tracks.

THE SILVER DOLLAR.

The Cabinet Decides Against Its Continued Coinage.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Silver speculators are not pleased with Friday's cabinet meeting. They had counted on a decision to continue the coinage of silver dollars after July 1, and this they believed would send the white metal upward. But Secretary Foster found that additional circulation could be secured for a while at least in a better way, and this way will be followed. The act of March 3, 1891, requires that the secretary of the treasury shall, as soon as practicable, coin the trade dollar bars into silver dollars. Secretary Foster also finds that $150,000 has been appropriated for the recoinage of the subsidiary silver coin into such denominations as will best serve to give circulation. There is constant demand for small coins, principally dimes, which the mints have not been able to supply. The secretary has decided that his first duty in this matter is to obey the direction of congress. Coinage of trade dollar bars will transform into standard dollars $5,145,281. It will require perhaps four months to perform the work of coining trade dollar bars and recoinage the subsidiary silver.

Therefore the question of the continued coinage of silver dollars is not deemed a practical one at present. The cabinet was helped to this decision by the figures prepared by Director Leach, which showed that the act of July, 1890, was practically taking care of the whole silver product of the United States and was acting steadily to the circulation. By the time the trade dollars and the subsidiary coins are recoinage the meeting of congress will be close at hand, and with the possibility of legislation ahead the treasury department is apt to continue the coinage of silver dollars unless directed by the law-making power. So this proposition may be looked upon as settled adversely.

The question of refunding the 4½'s is still undetermined and the indications are against any definite action for a while yet.

HOW FACTORIES HELP FARMERS.

One of the wisest movements by the republicans of the south is that for the formation of a protective tariff league at Asheville, North Carolina, on the 23d of July. The people of the south need to be educated on the subject of the tariff, and there is no better way to educate one than by object lessons. Here is an object lesson for the people of North Carolina:

No one in the "Old North State" will doubt but that its climate is better than that of Massachusetts. Its soil is certainly better. North Carolina was settled to some extent by the thrifty Scotch—a race even more careful than the puritans who first settled New England. The census report shows that 78 per cent of all the people of North Carolina who are "engaged in gainful occupations" are employed in the cultivation of the soil, whilst only 7 per cent are engaged in "manufacturing, mining and mechanical industries." North Carolina is one of the largest tobacco growing states. It also grows cotton, another paying crop. Wheat, corn, potatoes, vegetables and fruits of all kinds give splendid returns for good cultivation. Hay and small grain give large yields, and yet improved farm lands were valued in 1880 at an average of $20.90 per acre, and these lands produced articles consumed on the farm or sold at the average value of $7.95 per acre. A farmer in North Carolina with one hundred acres of improved land, had a property worth $2,090, and the income he made from this land by the owner's labor was $795.

In Massachusetts the climate is necessarily much colder. The products of the soil are fewer in variety and less valuable. Fifty-three per cent of the working people of Massachusetts are engaged in manufacturing, mining and mechanical industries, while only nine per cent are engaged in agricultural pursuits. The consequence is that improved farm lands in Massachusetts have an average value of $68.70 an acre, and the average value of one hundred acres of improved farm land in that state would be worth $6,870—more than three times what the North Carolinian's farm is worth—and the product would be valued at $1,115.

CAN'T CRAWL OUT THAT WAY.

Our sleepy River street neighbor, alarmed at news that reflects on the democratic party, says the anti-prohibition platform printed in The Gazette was not the one adopted. Inasmuch as The Gazette's manuscript was the final draft of the platform, bearing the signature of M. J. Dougherty, of the platform committee, and the endorsement "adopted," The Recorder must seek some new rock of refuge.

No wonder, though, that democrats winced at the anti-prohibitionists' charges. The politicians and the organs of democracy have promised publicly to bring about the repeal of the local option law. Every democratic organ in the state, denounced the law as an invasion of personal liberty rights and the anti-prohibitionists were encouraged by the democratic leaders to make a good fight for the democratic party as "the party of hostility to all forms of sumptuary legislation and especially to all legislation that encroached upon the personal liberty of the citizen." The "antis" furnished a good share of the sinews of war to the democracy last fall. But the local option law was not repealed. The democratic party did not dare repeat it and to justify themselves they are now vilifying the staunchest friends the party ever had.

Says The Milwaukee Sentinel: We are getting to a fair understanding of these veterans who have the impudence to be proud of having saved the nation. The Minneapolis Times (Dem.) tells us that they were "a grand army of military idlers—men guilty of putting on uniforms, taking government pay and bounty and following a drum; men whose conduct was less self-sacrificing, and whose occupation for four years was the tramping of throat-cutting." But we can be thankful that there were some noble citizens who refused to put on uniforms, follow a drum and cut throats—men who preferred to go to Canada until the disgusting business was over.

It is hoped there is no foundation for the rumored resignation of Census Superintendent Porter. His work is not nearly completed. The man who has so well begun so important an undertaking and carried it forward to such splendid results cannot be spared until he has finished his duties. No successor can take up the work just now and carry it forward as well as Mr. Porter.

Foreign railways are as enterprising in the pursuit and as eager for the capture of what answers there for the dollar as those in America. The "Holy Coat," claimed to be the seamless coat of the Savior is to be exhibited at Trave, August 23. The Rhine railways are aiding the church in spreading the announcement and are preparing to carry 40,000 passengers daily to the great religious gatherings which attend the public exhibition of the sacred relic.

Cotton is likely to get in the wake of the general exuberance this year and break the record in quantity. In fact, that was done last year, and the promise is that it will be still larger this year. There was an impression in early times that there could not be much cotton without slave labor. Time, however, corrects mistakes occasionally.

A Methodist minister in St. Louis preached the other day against the wearing of jewelry by his congregation, and his devoted flock immediately surrendered one thousand dollars' worth to be melted, turned into coin to be used in building a church. Further, the minister said that it is against the teachings of the Methodist church to wear gold ornaments.

The recent message of the president of the Argentine republic relates that the $260,000,000 of paper money issued some months ago for the relief of the people is now worth but 20 cents on the dollar. The experience there should be worth something to those who think the government credit sufficient basis for currency.

FOND OF WASHING.

A Raccoon That Could Not Resist an Opportunity to Take a Bath.
A correspondent sends to the Youth's Companion an account of a pet raccoon, of "the variety called the wash bear." It belonged to one of the officers of a ship in which our correspondent was sailing, and had a passion for rubbing something between his paws, as a person would use soap in washing the hands. One of our regular sources of amusement, she writes, was to place a bowl of water, with a piece of soap floating in it, in Mr. Coon's neighborhood, and then stand off to await results, which were never very long in coming.

As soon as the "coon perceived the basin he would draw near, peer into it, discover the soap and almost smile with delight. Then, squatting on his hind legs, he would begin to dabble his fore paws in the water and to rub the soap between them, so supremely happy that the sight of him was enough to provoke laughter.

Finally the ends would rise to the edge of the bowl and seriously inconvenience him in his work. A pause always ensued while the "coon gave the subject grave consideration. He had had enough experience to know that to proceed further was dangerous.

At last, despite overcoming prudence, he would scramble upon the basin's edge, trying to find a hold with his sharp claws on the smooth surface. Then operations would begin anew, and soon he would be once more lost in blissful enjoyment. But his bliss never endured very long.

Suddenly there would come a loss of balance and wild efforts to regain it; then a splash, followed by a great commotion amid the soapsuds and water, and, finally, the reappearance of the "coon, while, with snags, drenched and blinded, making for the nearest hiding place as soon as he could see his way.

A TELEGRAPHIC BLUNDER.

How It Created Havoc in Uncle Sam's I have heard of lots of funny telegraph mistakes, says an ex-telegraph operator, in the Chicago Journal, but I never laughed so heartily as over one in which a whole military detachment was concerned. I was holding down the Summit office in the Sierra Nevada mountains, and a message came to me: "Have one hundred gallons of coffee ready for us." Good heavens! we were in a quandary. How were we to get one hundred gallons of coffee in a few hours? Well, all set to work. Every grain of coffee that was procurable was obtained and ground up. Every utensil that could hold coffee was pressed into service. Pots, pans, teacups, basins, jugs, were in requisition. The train came along, and I, proud of my promptness and ability to execute so large an order, rushed up to the commanding officer and said, cheerily: "I have got your one hundred gallons of coffee all right, colonel." "What?" ordered one hundred gallons?" replied the colonel, haughtily. "You did." "To the deuce!" I only ordered ten gallons. What in thunder shall I do with one hundred gallons?" "I don't care what you do with it. You have got to pay for it!" The colonel swore, and so did I. "Do you suppose that we have ground up every bean there is in the neighborhood just for the fun of the thing? There is your dispatch—one hundred gallons." He paid for one hundred gallons, and presented us with it; but it was a hot discussion while it lasted, but it was nothing to my chagrin. I was expecting unlimited praise, instead of that I was called a blockhead.

Meteorite Iron Stones.

A very magnetic sample of meteoric iron was recently found at Pipe creek, near San Antonio, Tex. It has been examined by A. R. LeDoux, says the Chicago Globe, who finds that it contains a magnetic portion, 99.14 per cent. The magnetic portion consisted of iron, 99.94 per cent; nickel, 0.9 per cent; and the non-magnetic portion contained silica, sulphur, lime, magnesia, phosphorus and ferric oxide. O. W. Huntington has been examining a specimen from North Dakota, which fell in 1885. It consisted of 99.24 per cent of iron, together with nickel and traces of phosphorus and copper. The iron is so malleable that it can be rolled out into thin ribbon in the cold, and it breaks like a soft, solid material. The meteorite weighed 4,015 grammes, and from its peculiar shape and appearance appears to be a thick scale broken off from the spherical surface of a large body.

"ANTIS" SHOULD BE PATIENT

Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin: The anti-prohibition leaders distinctly intimate that they had promised from Democratic bosses, that if they would help the Peck and Vilas state ticket and the members of the legislature to be elected, if a democratic majority was obtained in both branches the local option law should be repealed. They expected a millennium in this state after the defeat of Governor Hoar. But the democratic bosses were not strong enough to do what they wanted to help the liquor sellers and the saloons. If the democratic party should carry the state in 1892 the leaders will then feel strong enough to carry out any bargain which they may make with the liquor sellers and the saloons. So the anti-prohibitionist should be gentle with their democratic friends, for they should bear in mind that it was the power and not the will that was wanting.

James Keeps His Place.

There is a small boy working in a mercantile establishment in this town who is not likely to be hanged while he stays in New York state and the present law stand as they do. More than this concerning this young man it would be rash to prophesy.

Now, the merchant who employs him to do so many things very badly is a large, red of face, pompous and dignified. He was once in the senate gallery at Washington when Roscoe Conkling sat down, metaphorically speaking, on a statesman from Vermont or some other place. Since that time this merchant has been Conklingesque, particularly when rebuking an employee.

Now the small boy, who may be called James, succeeded the other day in performing some especially villainous action that drew down upon him the wrath of his employer. So he was called into the presence. The dignified merchant expanded his chest, frowned and proceeded to annihilate the small boy with a look. The small boy would not annihilate.

"James!" said the merchant haughtily. "Yes, sir," said James not at all haughtily.

"I wish you to listen to me."

"Yes, sir," said James.

"This sort of thing won't do at all, sir."

"Yes, sir," said James.

"There can be no apology for such proceedings. Do you hear, sir?" said the merchant. "I will not hear of an apology, sir!"

"Yes, sir," said James, "but I haven't made one."

Then the scene closed, and James is not yet discharged. The haughty merchant is still thinking the matter over, and does not see his way clear. James does—New York Recorder.

Ladies Riding Sideways.

The introduction of the style of riding on horseback side saddle is attributed to Anna of Bohemia, consort of Richard II. She it was, according to Stowe, who originally showed the women of England how gracefully and conveniently they might ride on horseback sideways. Another historian, enumerating the new fashions of Richard II's reign, observes:

"Likewise noble ladies then used high heads, and corsets and robes with long trains, and seats on side saddles on their horses, by the example of the respectable Queen Anna, daughter of the king of Bohemia, who first introduced the custom into the kingdom; for before women of every rank rode as men."

Stoward in his beautiful illustrative picture of Chaucer's "Canterbury Pilgrims," appears, according to the above quoted authorities, to have committed an anachronism in placing the most conspicuous female character of his fine composition sideways on her steed. That the lady ought to have been depicted riding the male fashion might have been inferred, without any historical research, if the subject, from the poet's describing her as having on her feet "a pair of spurs sharp."

The Great Sun Dragon.

It is the belief among both the ignorant and the educated classes of China that eclipses of the sun are caused by a great dragon which attempts to devour the center of our solar system. An eclipse which was visible in the Celestial empire occurred at a time when the people were celebrating the birthday of the emperor. Now, it is the custom to celebrate such an event as the best of the feast that can be afforded; it is also customary to wear sackcloth and go into mourning at the time of an eclipse; at least until the sun has been rescued from the great dragon which seeks to devour it. Here, indeed, was a dilemma. At the time the emperor was petitioned, he being as superstitious as his people, ordered his birthday ignored and commanded the people to go into mourning until the sun shall be "rescued."—St. Louis Republic.

Jenkins Breaks Loose.

Miss Fenderson is one of those lovely, nymphlike maidens who seem the incarnation of some poet's dream of beauty. She is somewhat above medium height, with a graceful figure, exquisite in its proportions, and a bearing of refined ease and dignity. The clustering locks of her bright, golden brown hair contrast strikingly with her large, velvety lashes over arched by strongly marked eyebrows. In moments of animation she exhibits a pale rose tint of her cheeks deepens and flushes like "a rose dawn," and her brilliant eyes glow with redoubled lustre. Here is not the beauty of color alone, for her features have a comely delicacy and regularity—New Orleans Picayune.

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION.

Lightning Strikes a Powder Magazine Near Galveston, Tex.—Much Damage Results.
GALVESTON, Tex., June 27.—About 11 a. m. Friday during an electrical storm lightning struck and exploded the powder house of the American Powder Company, containing 2,000 kegs of powder. The concussion caused the Hazard & Dupont and Laffin & Co. powder houses to explode and the fireworks magazine of Victor Cortinas. Although these powder magazines were located near Eagle Grove, 4 miles west of the city, the shock of the explosion caused houses to rock and away in the city as if in the throes of an earthquake. Glass was broken, doors flung open, plaster fell from the wall, goods came tumbling down from the shelves and people stood aghast. Chaos and ruin marked the scene of disaster. Where the powder houses stood there is not a vestige of building left and the site of the American powder magazine is marked by a large, low, ground, 180 feet in circumference and from 25 to 30 in depth.

Buildings in the immediate neighborhood and for three-quarters of a mile distant are badly wrecked and a number of persons hurt, one man fatally. The offices of the stock yards were badly wrecked and fourteen heads of cattle and other stock were killed. Total loss, $20,000.

Nervous Prostration.

The symptoms begin in spring and early summer. They resemble the symptoms of malaria very closely. It is a profligate source of paralysis, sunstroke, apoplexy, insanity, hysteria and insomnia. The strong and weak of both sexes are alike its victims. Creeping rigors, slight, chilly feelings and cold sweat, especially at night, tired feelings, drowsiness, mental confusion, despondency, morbid fear, pale, abundant urine, weak back and palpitation. No one who has any or all of the above symptoms should neglect to get Pe-ru-na and use it faithfully until they entirely disappear.

It is a perfect remedy for this condition. As the hot weather, with all its depressing effects approaches, Pe-ru-na invigorates and tones up the nervous system, averting nervous prostration, in all of its various forms; and, taken in the most advanced stages of the disease, will permanently cure every uncomplicated case. It is foolish and dangerous to be without this never-failing remedy at a time when every one is exposed to such serious liabilities. Pronounced Hopeless. Yet Saved.

From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd, of Groton, S. D., we quote: "I was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles; it has cured me, and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman. Trial bottles free at W. T. Sherer & Co.'s drugstore; regular size 50c and $1.00.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osceola, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kitchener, Conway, Ark.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

R. A. Archer, M. D., 111 1/2, Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

SAD FOR THE "ANTIS"

State Press Comment on the Janesville Convention.

"WAS A MATTER OF PARTY HONOR."

"Except for That Incident Would Have Been of Little Importance," Is the General Sentiment Expressed Throughout the State.

Brethren At War.
Northwestern Mail (pro.): One of the most unexpected happenings has happened in Wisconsin politics. The democratic state organ is quarreling with the organ of the state saloonkeepers' association. These brethren who have heretofore dwelt together in blissful unity, are at each other's ears as though the democratic organ were a red hot prohibition organ.

Shameful Piece of Politics.
Milwaukee Sentinel: It was a shameful thing for the twenty-two democratic members to have pledged themselves to a particular course in consideration of campaign funds and votes from the anti-prohibition society. It was shameful that the society should have demanded such a pledge. With neither has the public any sympathy.

No Wonder They Are Angry.
Madison Journal: The anti-prohibitionists, in session at Janesville, are reading the riot act to the democratic party managers. We do not see how the anti-prohibitionists are to be blamed for thus showing up the failings of their former friends.

A Matter of Party Honor.
La Crosse Republican and Leader: The question raised by anti-prohibitionists was not so much one of good politics as it was of honor. These men are proud of their party and they did not, and never intended to do, and the censure of the society is merited.

"A Cheap Lot Anyway."
Milwaukee Journal: "The few men who keep the organization (anti-prohibition association) together, are not of the highest order of intelligence and try to handle those with whom they deal by bulldozing."

Are Warring on Local Opinion.
Milwaukee Journal—The society is waging its warfare against local opinion, but the term is not well enough understood to arouse prejudice and cause the people to contribute money to fight it.

How Democrats Were Elected.
Oshkosh Northwestern: Was ever a spectacle more humiliating, or open affront more brazen, or the confession of the use of corruption funds more barefaced than this bold presentation at the so-called anti-prohibition convention at Janesville.

A GIANT IN JANESVILLE.
Peeks Sun: Dick Richard Hawley, the urbane day clerk of the Park hotel in Janesville, had a long Cobb from Georgia under his care for a short time recently. The giant, for that is what Mr. Cobb was, walked up to the desk, dodging the chandeliers, and confronting Mr. Hawley without any warning. The clerk looked at the proper angle to see Mr. Cobb's head, but saw only vest buttons. After crowding down a swoon that was beginning to steal over him, the clerk looked away up and beheld the apex of Cobb. The guest smiled down a few feet, put one hand on the ceiling to steady himself, and asked for a pen. Having received this, he inquired about the weather down there where Hawley lived, and said he wanted a room and board for a few days.

Noticing that the giant was not inclined to twirl hotel clerks around his fingers, Mr. Hawley took courage, lifted up his face and his voice and said the weather was a little too warm down on earth but hoped it was cool and comfortable up in the rarified air where Mr. Cobb lived. A voice from the ceiling said it was. Then Hawley began to look troubled. He became silent. While waiting for developments, Mr. Cobb leaned away down and said in a whisper, which the crowd which was gathered could not hear, "I need a bath." This increased Mr. Hawley's perplexity. He thought hard but as far as he knew there was no room in the hotel, except a few in use, which was long enough for him. One of the waiter girls had a large plain room and Hawley, in his desperation, thought of putting Cobb in there. Finally as a means of gaining time the clerk sent the giant to the bathroom, followed by a slave bearing eight or nine towels and a box of soap.

What took place in the bathroom the world will never know, except that Mr. Cobb got his bath. But meanwhile the clerk was flying about to find a place where the giant could sleep. A thought of making a bed on the floor in the parlor, but through the keyhole of the bathroom door Mr. Cobb objected vigorously to sleeping on the floor. In all the big sleeping rooms there were newly married couples and they would not be disturbed. At last a happy thought struck Mr. Hawley. He noticed a room on the top floor with a skylight and a window opening out on a landing of the fire escape. He assigned the giant to this room and it gave satisfaction, for when tired of sleeping he opened the skylight, and at night he got into a comfortable position by turning the bed a little askew and sticking his feet out on the escape.

It is said that in the dining-room Mr. Cobb always hung his hat on a chair or on the ceiling and that the bar-tender always jumped up on the bar when serving him, because the giant always had a story to tell. Giants may be all right in side-shows and story books, but they make hotel people in Janesville earn their salaries.

WHERE ARE THE WARD LINES?

Street Improvements Delayed by Doubt as to the Charter Amendments.

The Second and Third ward aldermen are in trouble. Hickory street is being graded by contract. The contractor has a quantity of gravel to dispose of, and Milwaukee avenue is in need of some of it. The aldermen of the Third ward want the avenue repaired, and so do the aldermen of the Second ward, yet neither are certain about legal boundary lines. It is an easy matter to pay out money for street work, but not so easy to recover money once spent. The city attorney has not filed his opinion yet confirming the validity of the charter amendments, although his expense bill has been paid by the city. Until this opinion is filed and accepted as final, those who question the legality of the amendment will act cautiously on questions involved in the disputed document.

A Card From Mr. and Mrs. Brown.

The informal social gathering held at the house of the Presbyterian pastor Friday evening last, was a more or less complete surprise to both the pastor and his wife, and was equally delightful to both. BIBLE QUOTED AT WEEDS.

Complaint Made Regarding the Streets of the City.

EDITOR GAZETTE: We desire to call the attention of the street commissioner, or city marshal, to the very bad condition of our streets, in the matter of uncut grass, rank growth of weeds and going to seed, which give some prominent streets of the city the appearance of a desert, and one is reminded of the desolations of ancient Babylon, of which it is said, "the wild beasts of the desert shall lie there, and they shall be full of doleful creatures, and owls shall dwell there, and satyrs shall dance there." If we have any ambition for the reputation of this city, or any pride, or self-respect, let us bestir ourselves, and call upon the mayor, if need be, that something may be done to remedy this evil, and unsightly condition of things, in our otherwise fair city.

The pastor was given a handsome easy chair and hammock, while his good wife was presented a beautiful tablecloth and napkins.

The papers and petition, which is signed very numerous, have been on file in the executive office ever since last March.
